

Christies Care

Press Release

SAXMUNDHAM FIRM DRESSES DOWN IN JEANS FOR GENES

05 October 2010

Employees at Saxmundham care agency Christies Care enjoyed dressing down in their annual 'Jeans for Genes' fund raising day last week (1st October) and raised £100, bringing to £640 the total amount they've raised since 2004 for children who have genetic disorders.

Staff wore their best denim in exchange for a donation to the charity and after they raised £55 the firm's bosses added £45 to make the £100 total.

Debbie Ratcliffe, who organised the day, said: "Jeans for Genes is an annual fixture in the Christies Care calendar because it's such an easy and fun way of raising funds for such a worthwhile cause."

Jeans for Genes was established in 1996, and raises funds for research into serious and often life-threatening genetic disorders affecting thousands of children.

For more information on Jeans for Genes and how to donate money, please visit www.jeansforgenes.com

